Back East---But Not In Southern California

S. P. Official Gives Statement of Facts

The Southern Pacific has put over $20,000,000 into the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway, to give San Diego a direct outlet to and from the Imperial Valley, Arizona and the east. This revived the cotton and other export business through the port of San Diego and opened a future for San Diego as a direct line from this vast empire to San Diego and the port of San Diego.

So far, this short line to San Diego has not paid, but has shown a deficit each year which has run into several millions of dollars. But they still have hope in this project and that the future growth and development of business will justify this big expenditure. With the support and encouragement of San Diego, I believe this hope can be realized. The San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway owns large acreage and property in the City of San Diego, and is a heavy taxpayer. The shops are here; its purchasing is done here; its general offices and headquarters are here, and it employs about 250 men who have homes and families here.

The Southern Pacific, the parent company of the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway, is one of the greatest railroads in these United States, with over 19,000 miles of rail and steamship lines, with headquarters in California; the pioneer of railroads in this great state of California; the most miles of railroad in California; the greatest employer of any railroad in California, and the greatest purchaser in California. It has more part in the development of the great state of California than any other railroad. Any place at which the Southern Pacific terminates is benefitted by greater prosperity. San Diego has more than doubled in population since the San Diego & Arizona Eastern was completed by the Southern Pacific, in 1919.

The Southern Pacific put on a great campaign of advertising throughout the east and northwest covering the San Diego 1935 Exposition, not exceeded by any railroad, and for the 1936 Exposition it is all ready to put on even a greater campaign of advertising. This advertising is hooked up with Dallas "See Them Both" slogan, and "Come Direct to San Diego". These advertisements will appear in national magazines, publications and newspapers, starting in March.

How can San Diego or San Diego county take sides against a line doing these things for this district? They do not have to take sides—but simply leave the matter of franchises to a duly appointed body, the California Railroad commission, who will handle in their regular and orderly way without prejudice to either side or any community, according to the laws set down by the state of California. This has reference to the controversy of the Santa Fe versus the Southern Pacific-Greyhound Lines over bus franchises.

A. D. Hagaman, Chairman, Southern Pacific-Greyhound Li.

S. D. County Shows Population Increase 25%

San Diego county had a population of 262,120 on January 1, 1935, an increase of 52,461 or 25.02 per cent, over the 1930 census population of 209,659, according to estimates recently completed by California Taxpayers' association.

Population of the state as a whole the Taxpayers' association estimates, is 6,367,860, an increase of 690,609, or 12 per cent since the 1930 census, when the population of the state was 5,677,251.

The ten counties showing the greatest numerical increase in population were Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, San Bernardino, Riverside, Monterey, Sacramento, Alameda, Kern, and Santa Clara. The ten counties showing the greatest percentage increase were Alpine, with an increase estimated at 136.5 percent, or from 241 to 570, Mono, Trinity, Nevada, Mariposa, El Dorado, Monterey, Yuba, Sierra and Riverside. In only two counties Modoc and San Benito, is a decrease estimated.

In spite of these increases in population, the Taxpayers' association points out that elementary school average attendance thruout the state has declined, the 1931-32 peak figure being reported as 684,014, while during the 1935 school year there were but 673,012 children in average daily attendance in the elementary schools. The decline from the 1931-32 peak showed 11,000 fewer units, or a decrease approaching 2 per cent.

In the peak year, 1931-32, San Diego county showed 25,204 units of elementary average daily attendance, while for the school year ending in June, 1935, the county showed 26,590 units.

Last year, the association found, thirty-three counties, representing 77 per cent of the total average daily attendance of the state, showed fewer students in average daily attendance in regular elementary classes than in the year before. The decreased school attendance is the direct result of the decreasing number of children born in the United States as a whole since 1921 and in California since 1924, the association stated. California, contrary to the declining trend in its elementary school average daily attendance, seems to be increasing in population at a faster rate even than the United States as a whole, although how long the increased rate of growth may continue cannot be predicted.

No. 14--Ocean Beach Car Time Change Monday

Ocean Beach should benefit immensely from a change in time of street car service that will be inaugurated next Monday, March 9, the change to be in time, that No. 14 cars leave here for the city. With the new schedule these cars will leave Ocean Beach on the hour and half-hour, running direct to the Plaza without hooking up with Nos. 15 and 16, as heretofore, that come down from Mission Beach and La Jolla.

This will give Ocean Beach its own individual car circling thru down town San Diego with a prominent sign displayed both front and rear on the car making it a good deal more conspicuous than previously.

Additional bus service is promised to connect with Nos. 14 and 16 car lines which should eliminate the crowded condition morning and evening that high school students have had to contend with.

From Ocean Beach junction under the new arrangement there will be a fifteen minute service thruout the day and this will prove to be a mighty fine addition during the summer months when traffic is heaviest to the beaches and Mission bay.

Remember—Monday morning No 14 street cars leave Ocean Beach on the hour and half-hour.

Large Home Sold at Sunset Cliffs

One of the nicest homes at Sunset Cliffs was sold this week to Frank Cavanaugh of San Diego, the property being located at 4638 Alhambra street.

Mr. Cavanaugh, it is reported, came to this section from St. Louis about two years ago and bought the Proctor Apts. in San Diego which he recently sold.

The Sunset Cliffs section is a high class residential district with climate and ocean view second to none in the whole wide world.

PROPERTY OWNER SAYS SAYS LOCAL HOLDINGS MOST DESIRABLE

One of our winter residents who has considerable holdings here, also Salt Lake City, Butte, Mont., and a few other places, told us last week that he considered his Ocean Beach investments the most desirable of all. He says his property here depreciated less and values returned quicker than in any other of the cities he has holding. He has never sacrified any of his Ocean Beach property and where he has vacant lots will now build to suit responsible tenants.

Ocean Beach is indeed a wonderful place in which to live and raise a family, where the children can have healthful recreation and enjoy sports at the beach with little or no cost for amusement.

Or, for middle aged and older folks the climate is most always moderate with never freezing weather and very little storm.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. GILMER THIS MORNING

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. this morning, Friday, March 6th, at Trinity Episcopal church, for Mrs. Margaret G. Gilmer, beloved wife of Dr. John Parks Gilmer, who passed away early Thursday morning. Rev. John Osborn officiating.

Mrs. Gilmer had been in poor health for a number of years. She was a native of Kentucky, the fifth generation coming from that state, though she has lived in California for a little more than thirty years.

The sympathy of the community is extended Dr. Gilmer and family in their bereavement.

Six New Cottages To Go Up On Car Line

Fully realizing the urgent demand for houses, B. B. Boyd, already a heavy property owner here, has taken out permit for the construction of six frame cottages and garages, 5002 to 5006 Saratoga avenue and 2010 to 2016 Bacon street. The cottages it is reported wil cost about $1,000 each.

Boyd has eight or ten cottages now on the corners directly opposite and across the street from this property on which he is now to build and has always had very good demand for renting these other cottages.

New Lutheran Mission Church Going Up

Construction has been under way now for several days on a new church building for the Lutheran Mission of Ocean Beach on lots they bought a few months back at 4805 Cape May avenue. This corner the Lutherans purchased is a very fine site at the corner of Cape May and Sunset Cliffs blvd.

The church people have used good judgment and we find at Ocean Beach most of the churches in the same neighborhod. In three blocks of Sunset Cliffs blvd. We have the Ocean Beach Grammar school, the Library building, the Baptist, Methodist, Catholic and Episcopal churches, then when this new church structure is finished, it also will add to the appearance of this street.

C. E. VonGunden is contractor for the new edifice.

Dance Hall Building Leased For Skating

The old dance hall at foot of Newport avenue will be opened as a roller skating rink in the near future according to present information which is to the effect that the building has been leased for this purpose to Ahrens and Hartman of San Diego.

Hartman has been associated with the theatres of the city for many years being manager for a time of the California, later of the Fox, and still later at the Orpheum. Ahrens, it is said, has been with the Cabrillo theatre.

Ocean Beach as an amusement center should be a good paying place the coming summer for a skating rink and a merry-go-round.

Who'll bring us a merry-go-round for the kiddies.

CITY MANAGER ASKED FOR COLLIER PARK REPORT

When asked by local people Tuesday that Collier park be transferred to the City School Board for school purposes, the city council referred the matter to the city manager for investigation and for his report on same.

The Point Loma high school being very much over-crowded it is proposed that Collier park be used as a site for a junior high school.

We trust the manager's report is prompt in order that the election can be held with the primary in May.

TOWNSEND RALLY AT LA JOLLA NEXT MONDAY

There will be a big Townsend rally next Monday evening, March 9, 7:30 p. m. at La Jolla. Dr. H. S. Harriss will be speaker of the evening and there will be other entertainment. Everyone invited.

NOTICE!

Effective Monday, March 9th, the schedule time of the No. 14 Ocean Beach car will be changed so that all cars will leave all points 15 minutes earlier {or later} than the scheduled time that has been heretofore in effect for some years; thus will alternate with the La Jolla car resulting in a 15-minute service at Ocean Beach Junction.

Additional school bus service will be provided connecting with both No. 14 and No. 16 car lines.

San Diego Electric Ry. Co.

Pat O'Rourke To Talk Here Monday Night

Pat O'Rourke, who is proposing a separate county and city unit of government, has been invited and will be present at Ocean Beach chamber of commerce meeting next Monday evening, March 9, at the Woman's club house. The meeting will be called to order at 8 p. m. and several other prominent men have been asked to be in attendance by Carl Schroder, president.

A number of other matters of importance will be brought before the gathering which is an open meeting to which the general public is invited.

CITY COUNCIL REPEALS FIRE LIMITS ORDINANCE

The City Council Tuesday repealed the ordinance which established inner fire limits in business section of Ocean Beach. The main requirement of the old ordinance was the building of masonry walls which property owners here believed held back a good deal of improvement and therefore petitioned for the removal of this regulation.

THOMAS O'BRIEN BUYS CRESWELL HOUSES

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, 4778 Muir avenue, a few weeks ago bought the two Creswell houses at corner of Muir and Cable streets and will rent them as they also own the property where they now make their home.

Mrs. O. N. Creswell left the first of the week for Los Angeles where she now intends to make her home, as she has two daughters living there. She has made her home here for the past twelve years, with her husband who passed away last June.

DATES CHANGED FOR DOG CLINICS AT FIRE HOUSES

Changes in dates for dog vaccination clinics were announced Monday by the city department. The new dates are instead of those published last Wednesday.

The clinics will be held from 9 a. m. to noon as follows:

March 12, La Jolla fire station; March 17 Ocean Beach fire station; March 19, Pacific Beach fire station.

The clinics also are held at the Humane society headquarters on Wright St., every Wednesday from 9 a. m. to noon.

Apartments Being Made In Woman's Club Bldg.

For the past two months the building occupied by the Woman's club and Mack's Good Eats, has been undergoing improvement but apparently the F. S. Jennings Co., believe it will pay to continue the good work. The first of the week a building perrmit was received by the owners for alterations to cost $4,000.

It is reported that the north part of the structure, not occupied by the cafe mentioned and the Woman's club, will all be remodeled and made into apartments that will be rented to summer visitors or others who may wish to live right on the beach.

GAS PRODUCTION SUPERINTENDENT DIES SUDDENLY

Joseph Alfred Harritt, superintendent of gas production for the San Diego Consolidated Gas & Electric Co., died unexpectedly Monday. He apparently had been in good health and his death came as a shock to his friends.

Mr. Harritt was born in San Diego 56 years ago and had been with the gas and electric company 27 years.

Funeral services were held Thursday, at the Bradley-Woolman St. Cecilia chapel, the Rev. John B. Osborn officiating.

Mr. Harritt was the husband of Mrs. Luella Bailey Harritt, son of Mrs. Ella Farley Harritt and father of seven children.

New Deal Wins in Tennessee Valley Case—Picking Delegates for National Conventions—Substitute Farm Bill Pushed to Passage.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SCORE one for the New Deal; and a big one. The Supreme court in its long awaited decision ruled that the Tennessee Valley Authority act is valid, on all points at issue in the suit brought by the stockholders of the Alabama Power company. Under the ruling the adiministration is free to go ahead with its power program in the Tennessee valley actually under way. The decision was read by Chief Justice Hughes and was concurred in by all the associate justices except Justice McReynolds. He read a dissenting opinion.

Chief Justice Hughes

Because of circumscribed limits the decisfon was much narrower than most of the New Deal findings of the Supreme court. It was limited strictly to the terms of the contract on which the suit was brought, namely, acquisition by TVA of a transmission line to convey power from the Wilson dam.

Certain phases are still open for possible legal contest in the future, and only Wilson dam, not Norris dam or any other dam constructed or projected on the Tennessee river was involved in the court's finding.

The legal right of the federal government to acquire and own transmission lines to a market for surplus energy—never before directly passed upon by the United States Supreme court—was ruled upon in the affirmative. Unanswered is the question of what constitutes surplus power.

Among the chief points in the majority opinion were these:

The government had full authority to build Wilson dam—keystone of TVA.

Congress has undisputed power to order disposal of electricity developed at the dam.

The government acted legally in building or obtaining through purchase from private companies certain transmission lines to transport power to a wider market.

The government has the same right to dispose of surplus power as it would have to dispose of copper, gold, and minerals on public lands.

Justice McReynolds in answer to this said:

"If under the thin mask of disposing of property the United States can enter the business of generating, transmitting and selling power, as, when and wherever, some board may specify, with the definite design to accomplish ends wholly beyond the sphere marked out for them by the Constitution, an easy way has been found for breaking down the limitations heretofore supposed to guarantee protection against aggression."

BOTH house and senate passed the resolution extending for one year the existing embargo on arms, ammunition, and implements of war, and prohibiting loans and credits to belligerents.

Senator Nye was out of the city when the senate assembled, an hour earlier than usual, to act on the measure. Hearing what was going on, he flew from Minneapolis through a storm and arrived five minutes before the final vote but too late to put through any of his proposed amendments. One amendment that was adopted provides that after the President shall have issued his proclamation of the existence of war between or among two or more foreign countries, it shall be unlawful thereafter to sell or purchase in this country bonds or other obligations of any belligerent. The President is authorized to exempt ordinary commercial credits and short time obligations.

SELECTIONS of delegates to the national conventions, already being made in some states, are interesting, especially in the case of New York. Representative Hamilton Fish, supporting Borah for the Republican Presidential nomination, led a hot fight to displace some of the "old guard" and lost, the state committee naming these delegates at large:

Charles D. Hilles and Mrs. Ruth Pratt, members of the national committee; Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, vice chairman of the state committee; Representative Bertrand H. Snell, minority leader of the house; Representative James W. Wadsworth, former United States senator; Edward H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo Evening News; John R. Crews, Brooklyn leader; Charles H. Griffiths, Westchester county chairman.

Tammany made public the list of its delegates to the Democratic convention, and it is headed by Alfred E. Smith who will represent the tip of Manhattan and Staten island.

President Roosevelt was called on to choose the California Democratic delegation from three sets selected by the conservative Democrats, the Upton Sinclair EPIC followers and the supporters of the Townsend old age pension plan. It was believed he would give the balance of power to the conservatives led by Senator William G. McAdoo, with representation for the other two groups.

UNLESS Governor Hoffman of New Jersey grants him another reprieve, Bruno Richard Hauptmann will be executed during the week of March 30 for the kidnaping and killing of the Lindbergh baby. Sentence on the German carpenter has been again pronounced. For several days Samuel Liebowitz, noted New York criminal lawyer, tried to get Hauptmann to tell another story and reveal his accomplices in the crime, but the condemned man flatly refused and Liebowitz withdrew from the case, saying he believed Bruno to be guilty.

TEN days of hot debate in the senate culminated in the passage of the administration's substitute farm bill by a vote of 56 to 20, and it was hurried over to the house with the prospect of quick approval by that body.

Attacked by Republicans as a subterfuge to get around the Supreme court AAA decision, and frankly conceded by Democrats to be a measure indirectly continuing control of farm production, the soil erosion bill would accomplish its objective as follows:

The secretary of agriculture would be empowered to make benefit payments to farmers who voluntarily cooperate with the government's suggestions on retiring certain land from production to conserve its fertility. Payments would be determined on four factors:

1. Acreage of crop land.
2. Acreage of soil improving crops.
3. Changes in farming practices.
4. Percentage of normal farm production which equals that percentage of normal national production of farm commodities required for domestic consumption.

This arrangement would be limited to two years. It would be replaced by a system of 48 individual state AAA's to regulate production, with the federal government apportioning funds to the states, instead of to farmers. The senate bill provides the state systems may be set up at any time during the next two years.

DELAYED dispatches from the Italian fieldquarters in northern Ethiopia tell of a six-day battle, the fiercest and most important of the war so far, in which the forces of General Badoglio about 70,000 in number, defeated and routed 80,000 Ethiopians, including 10,000 of the emperor's guard under Ras Mulugheta, war minister, and 70,000 warriors under Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum. The Italians were left in full possession of the fertile and strategic Enderto region and in control of the passes in the Tembien region.

Gen. Badoglio

After six days of encircling operations, during which torrential rains bogged the field of battle and heavy clouds enabled the Ethiopians to make invisible movements, the March 23 division of blackshirts planted the Italian flag on the mist-veiled high summit of Aradam, completing that particular operation. They then had a clear path to Amba Alagia, 18 miles further south, and it was presumed that the taking of that mountain would mark the cessation of activities because of the coming March rains.

It was estimated that in this battle more than 6,000 Ethiopians had been killed and many times that number wounded. The Italian casualties were not announced but they undoubtedly were not light. Only white Italians participated in the fighting.

CONSIDERABLE interest was aroused in Europe by the publication in a Rome newspaper of a "secret" report made by a British commission appointed in the spring of 1935 "to study British interests in Ethiopia."

The commission reported that it found no outstanding British interests in Ethiopia "of sufficient importance to justify his majesty's government in resisting Italian conquest in Ethiopia." It declared, however, that steps should be taken to safeguard British interests in Lake Tsana, source of the Blue Nile.

ONE of the most spectacular and dynamic figures in American life of today passed with the death of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell in a New York hospital. He succumbed to a heart attack and influenza at the age of fifty-seven years. "Billy," as he was known to airmen, was commander in chief of the American air forces in France during the World war and was decorated by six governments. Afterward, while yet in the regular service, he severely criticized the government's air preparedness policy and was courtmartialed and suspended. Immediately resigning, he devoted himself to lecturing and writing to further his demands for a separate department of aviation in the cabinet, combining both army and navy air defense.

THE War department bill, appropriating approximately 545 million dollars for "national defense," was passed by the house. For purely military purposes the sum of $376,866,333 is allotted. The remainder, $168,359,985, goes for rivers and harbors projects, generally classed as "pork."

An attempt to put back into the bill a $29,000,000 appropriation for carrying on such projects as the Passamaquoddy tidal power experiment in Maine and the Florida ship canal was suppressed firmly. Not until congress has authorized these projects will more funds be provided them, the leaders ruled.

The military budget provided by the bill will be sufficient to maintain an average army of 147,000 men during the coming year. By 1939, according to the War department, the maximum of 165,000 permitted by congress should be reached.

The most important amendment added to the bill was one providing for the employment each year of 1,000 reserve officers on active duty for a 12-month period, of whom 450 will be annually commissioned in the regular army.

SENATOR HUGO L. BLACK of Alabama and his lobby investigation committee are creating a flood of resentment among American citizens that is likely to do vastly more harm than good to the New Deal. Quite without concealment Black is using the committee in a way that thousands of people do not like. He sent out a questionnaire to individuals and organizations known to be opposed to the New Deal, demanding information on their relations with all organizations and their corporation and other investments. Many refused to answer the questions, and they are supported in this position by the American Liberty league, which has challenged the right of Black's committee to compel answer under oath to the queries. In effect, the league dares Black to cite for contempt of the senate those who refuse to reply to the questionnaire.

Senator Black

Senator Black's only reply to date was that it was "a little difficult to believe that the league would attempt to intimidate or coerce its own members to keep their mouths shut until the du Ponts say they can talk."

ACTING on behalf of the senate finance committee, Senator Byrnes consulted the executive department and then introduced an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill to provide $1,746,000,000 to cash the veterans' bonus. He predicted that it would require no new taxes. The sum mentioned will be sufficient, Byrnes said, together with the 254 million dollars now in the adjusted service certificate fund, to pay in full every outstanding bonus certificate.

In addition to appropriating the cash, the Byrnes amendment would transfer 507 million dollars in bonds to the United States government life insurance fund to repay loans on bonus certificates.

WITH four members voting in the negative, the house ordered an investigation of the money-raising methods of the Townsend old age pension plan advocates. During the debate Dr. Francis E. Townsend was described variously as a "quack," "charlatan," "knave," and "fool." He and his program were defended by the small Townsend bloc.

Attempts by several congressmen to broaden the scope of the inquiry to include such organizations as the Liberty league and the Crusaders were futile.

LEFTISTS won the general election in Spain, and their leader, Manuel Azana, was made premier and formed a new cabinet to supplant that of Valldares. Azana is a veteran statesman, having been the first premier of the present Spanish republic. One of his first acts was the granting of amnesty to thousands of political prisoners who had been in jail since the revolt of October, 1934.

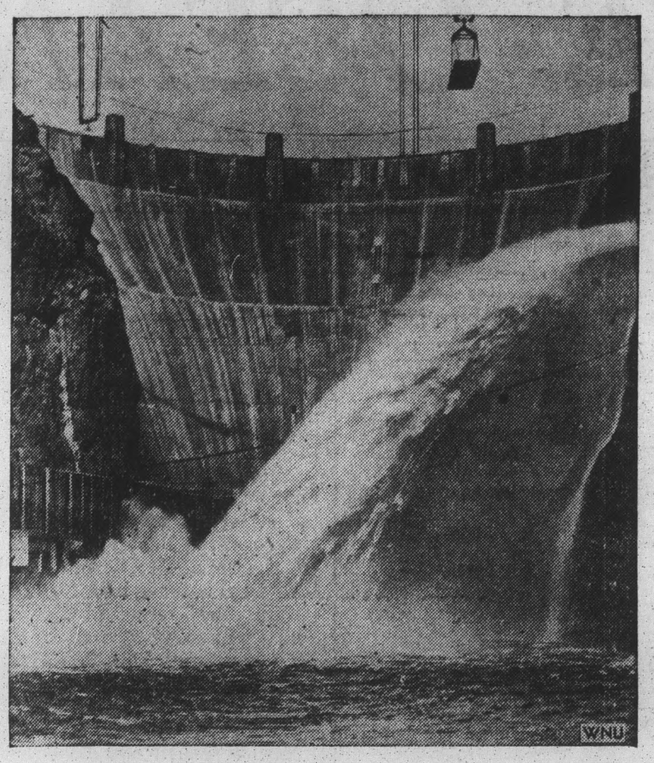
REVOLUTIONARIES, mostly military and led by Colonels Smith and Recalde, veterans of the Chaco war, took possession of the government of Paraguay after some fighting in the streets of Asuncion, the capital. The government forces surrendered to the rebels and President Ayala took refuge on a gunboat. It was announced a new government had been formed with Col. Rafael Franco as its head. He was an exile in Buenos Aires.

WITHOUT especial ceremony the League of Nations moved into its magnificent new home, the white stone palace built for it on the shore of Lake Leman just outside the city of Geneva. The structure is not yet completed for there were delays caused by disputes among the architects of various nations. The large central assembly room will not be ready before September and the library, to which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., donated $2,000,000, cannot be occupied for several weeks.

The palace is really composed of several buildings. One long wing contains the secretariat, another the council hall, a third the library, and a fourth the assembly hall.

Some idea of the immense size of the palace is had by a few figures. There are about 900 offices and other rooms, 1,700 doors, and the same number of windows. There are 21 elevators either for passengers or for goods.

CASCADE AT BOULDER DAM



This man-made cascade at Boulder Dam represents the first flow of water through the control valves below the huge structure. More than 1000 second feet of water are roaring through the partially opened valve, clear across the canyon. Note the terrific force generated by the water backed up already in Boulder Lake.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT MAKES A SURPRISING DISCOVERY

PROBABLY there is no happier time of the year for Lightfoot the Deer than when the dreadful hunting season ends and he is once more back in his beloved Green Forest with nothing to fear. All his neighbors called on him to tell how glad they were that he had escaped again and how the Green Forest would not have been the same had he not returned.

So Lightfoot roamed about without fear and was happy. It seemed to him that he could not be happier. There was plenty to eat, and that blessed feeling of nothing to fear. What more could anyone ask? He began to grow sleek and fat and handsomer than ever. The days were growing colder and the frosty air made him feel good.

Just at dusk one evening he went down to his favorite drinking place at the Laughing Brook. As he put down his head to drink he saw something which so surprised him that he quite forgot that he was thirsty. What do you think it was he saw? It was a footprint in the soft mud. Yes, sir, it was a footprint.

For a long time Lightfoot stood staring at that footprint. In his great, soft eyes was a look of wonder and surprise. You see, the footprint was exactly like one of his own, only smaller. To Lightfoot it was a very wonderful footprint. He was quite sure that never had he seen such a dainty footprint. He forgot to drink. Instead, he began to search for other footprints and presently he found them. Each was as dainty as the first one. Who could have made them? That is what Lightfoot wanted to know, and what he meant to find out. It was clear to him that there was a stranger in the Green Forest, and somehow he didn't resent it in the least. In fact, he was glad. He couldn't have told why, but it was true.

Lightfoot put his nose to the footprints and sniffed of them. Even had he not known by looking at those prints that they had been made by a stranger, his nose would have told him this. A great longing to find the maker of those footprints took possession of him. He lifted his handsome head and listened for some slight sound which might show that the stranger was near. With his delicate nostrils he tested the wandering little Night Breezes for a stray whiff of scent to tell him which way to go. But there was no sound, and the wandering little Night Breezes told him nothing. Lightfoot followed the dainty footprints up the bank. There they disappeared, for the ground was hard. Lightfoot paused, undecided which way to go.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

MEATS AND OTHER FOODS

AS THE main dish of the dinner is usually some form of meat, fish or fowl, something different is always a delight.

Chicken Almonds.

Cut with shears the raw meat from a three-pound roasting chicken. Cut into cubes. Soak one-half cup of dry mushrooms in one cup of water or peel and cut one cup of fresh ones. Cut a large mild onion into cubes. Fry one cup of blanched almonds in four tablespoons of peanut oil until crisp and brown, remove from the oil and keep warm. Place the chicken in the hot oil, add mushrooms and onion and one-fourth of a cup of water. Cook until the meat has lost its color, add almonds, and thicken with a tablespoon of soy sauce, one teaspoon of cornstarch and two teaspoons of water. Serve in a bowl, very hot.

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.

Have the shoulder blade removed from the meat, wipe with a damp cloth to remove any bits of bone. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Fry one small onion in four tablespoons of butter, add two cups of soft bread crumbs, season with salt, pepper and a tablespoon of chopped celery. Mix well and fill the pocket with the stuffing. Put the meat in a roasting pan into a very hot oven to sear the meat well and brown for 15 minutes. Reduce the heat to a moderate oven, add one cup of boiling water and bake 15 minutes to the pound, basting every half hour, adding more water when necessary. Peas are especially good to serve with lamb.

Smothered Broiled Fish.

Broil and chill a fine slice of halibut or salmon. When ready to serve lay on a cold chop plate, surround with cooked chilled string beans; partly cover the fish with a garnish of pickled nasturtium seeds or capers, sliced olives and very small cooked beets arranged ornamentally. Serve with sauce tartare, and at the same meal serve strawberry shortcake for dessert.

TRAVELING PAPER BALL

THE magician shows two wads of paper, one in each hand. He asks a spectator to hold one paper ball; the magician places it within the person's fist.

Then the magician pockets the second ball of paper. A mysterious snap of his fingers causes that ball to join the one which the spectator is holding—so the magician says, and his statement proves correct. Upon opening his hand, the spectator finds both paper balls.

Three balls of paper are used in the trick. In one hand, the magician holds two pressed together so they look like one. This is the "ball" which he places in the spectator's fist. Naturally, when he opens his hand, the spectator finds two instead of one.

The Work That Must Be Done

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THEY do the work that must be done:
The world has little need of lines
Like these—men first must fell the pines
And build a shelter from the sun.
They do the work ordained of old:
The world has little need of laws
Till they, who seldom seek applause,
Shall feed the hungry, clothe the cold.

They do the work God had in mind:
The world has little need of more,
Though this is all they labor for,
The care and comfort of mankind.
They do the work that God began:
The world has little need of speech,
For they, with service, better teach
Mankind the brotherhood of man.

They do the work, the humble deeds:
The world has little need of art
Until the workers do their part,
For out of them all art proceeds.
They do the work by God begun:
The world has not a greater need
Than hands that house and clothe and feed—
They do the work that must be done.

History's outstanding example of the value of hygienic living is Luigi Cornaro, whose serious sickness when he was forty years of age directed his attention to regulating his habits of life. In his eighty-fourth year he wrote his celebrated book showing how he had achieved health, high spirits and an unfailing interest in the life of his age.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

ANENT PHILIPPINE INVASION

Will Philippine Independence endure against foreign invasion is now quite a question mark. Coveted powers beyond her shores are already beginning to feel the temptation; however, President Quezon proposes to make conquest of the Islands "too costly to be profitable". To this end, he has laid plans for safe defense by establishing an eight million dollar stronghold for the first fiscal year. A standing army of 10,000 and trained army reserves of 500,000 are to built up.

Economically, Mr. Quezon stands for extending government ownership and operations of big industry much further than when under United States control. The President is a live wire and shows his efforts in terms of an economic administration. He plans industrial development and crop diversification, and will be expected to give private business the preference, but the Quezon Government expects to be the biggest business of the lot.

The people of the Philippines have persistently importuned for complete political autonomy for almost thirty-five years, and the inherent right of the Filipinos to their own government has been admitted in principle since the days of the first commission, which set up the groundwork of a form of protectorate government. California happens to be closer to the shores of Uncle Sam's Far East possession than any other part of the country, therefore ought to have some opinions on the matter of Philippine Independence.

Japan is creating lots of speculative comment, and seems to be the unruly boy in the academic school world. Many people see in her policy toward China, a particular menace to the United States. To close the "Open Door" of transaction to China would shut off our foreign trade with China. Yet, the Ambassador for Japan at Washington declares that there is no need of fear over the reported attitude of her people. Meanwhile, China takes the peaceful attitude. Few nations of the world show a deeper friendship than her.

China is still an independent government at peace with the whole world, and also desires to trade with the United States. Just now Japan is secretly showing an intensive interest in the Philippines, and to grant independence to that people is yet believed a dangerous blunder by some.

"Jackie" Coogan is a promising young millionaire, and his riches do not seem to elevate his pride over his friends and associates. This is a sign of success—success coming from admiration by his great host of friends. He always did believe more in his friends and comrades than the dollar sign. He never placed his hope on the greed of gain; like Emerson, he thinks that the worst thing about money is that it often costs too much. "Jackie" is still achieving fame, and it is not through his millions. When he became of age last October he was willing to start at the bottom, he said, in search of a career. His birthday brought the first portion of the fortune he earned as a movie star, giving him legal possession of part of an estate unofficially valued at $1,000,000. In time it all will come into his hands. Now, he has damage suits amounting to half a million dollars from greedy, tricky complaints of people and lawyers.

The Washington and London Treaties have peacefully expired, and it is asserted that they will not be renewed. This should be a splendid example for advancing world peace. The War menace has created the worst anxiety in the human breast ever known. So deep-rooted is it in theory that it will long be a dreadful practice. Limitation of armaments by mutual agreement is excellent in theory. But in fact, it does not work; if we judge by the policies of the past. History shows to the effect that, to limit military and naval aircraft, failed completely; that the effort to extend naval limitation to all naval powers, great and small, also failed completely, and now the question arises, should navies alone be limited and only navies that the United States, Britain, Japan, France and Italy, all signed the naval treaties. Not one of the five is satisfied. Not one desires to continue the treaties in their present form. Consequently, no new naval conference is in sight.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast!" California, among all its diversified production, is capable of producing ten times as much oil as can be consumed. This is an "eye-opener", especially when only recently a serious shortage of petroleum and its principles derivative, gasoline, was predicted in the United State would be upon us within five years, or not longer than eight years. Is this going to bring higher prices and an increase in oil imports from other countries, or will our Golden State be able to supply the demand? It is estimated that a maximum of 250,000 persons are employed in the business of mining and distributing petroleum and its products in the United States. To make this more emphasizing, it is well to state that practically 100 percent of this great working crew are American citizens, and mostly native whites.

The high-tax cry keeps going on with its dreadful moanings, just as though there was a cure or a remedy in sight. On the other hand no one seems to be doing anything about it. The recent tax conference held in Sacramento by 200 "picked delegates" invited by the Governor must have gone on the rocks so far as beneficial results are known. Meanwhile California continues to hold the nation's record as the highest per capita cost of government of all the states. This fever sore of over-spending is approaching a dangerous dilemma; as Grover Cleveland pronounced it in his day, "It is a condition which confronts us, not a theory." If there is anything ever done to make things easier for the people, who ultimately must pay the bills, it is the problem of spending fewer billions, rather than the question of how to collect more from the people!

A true, sympathetic understanding between parent, teacher and child is one of the most beautiful achievements in life. This is not always carried out, however, and here lies the sad part of it. More than forty years ago a mother conceived the need of this splendid relationship and it was her work that made the PTA such a vital influence as it is today. When Mrs. Theo Birney conceived the idea of the organization she needed funds and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst of California provided the money. With the rapid growth of the organization this state was in 1912 divided into districts of the California Congress. The power of the parent-teacher groups for good is unlimited and it is going forward with increasing influence.

FRIDAY UNLUCKY TO THOSE NOT PARKED PROPERLY

Ocean Beach News.
Dear Editor;

I see that the Ocean Beach Police Department has finally quit playing chess and poker in the back room and has wakened up to the fact that they are supposed to do service for the public. Friday, Feb. 28, they were out putting tickets on cars that were parked on the wrong side of the street.

The treasury must be getting low, or the coppers have gotten tired of their favorite past-times and have decided to test the humor of Ocean Beach citizens.

Yours sincerely,

PRESIDENTS OF KIWANIS MEET WITH LOCAL CLUB

Wednesday's meeting of Kiwanis was a round table affair with visiting presidents present being M. K. Carter of Oceanside club, Geo. Stephens of La Jolla club, J. M. McDonald of National City club and Arthur M. Shoven of San Diego club.

Geo. Cottrell of the Denver, Colo., club was a guest of Geo. Stephens of La Jolla. Dr. Louis Megede of Richmond, Mo., was a guest of J. M. McDonald of National City. F. R. Sessions was a guest of Milton Lancaster.

James H. Hughes was chairman of the program. Two very splendid duets were sung by Messrs. Myron Green and James Hughes.

The talks centered around "This Matter of Crime" upon which Mr. Hughes spoke for some fifteen minutes and then members gave their own view points along lines which had interested them most. McDonald, president of National City club urged that there be less lax thinking and loose talk resulting in higher ideals in government and all social problems.

Mr. Cottrell of Denver stated the membership of his club was 150 and that for their civic project they maintained a home for boys where about 20 were housed and assisted regularly.

Stephens of La Jolla had investigated the parole problem of San Diego county and stated there were now on parole here 745 people with only a limited number of parole officers to look after their welfare.

It was the consensus of opinion that all the Kiwanis clubs would do well to look after the building of an environment where youth generally would find a better place to live and have improved conditions.

Pointer Basketeers Lose to S. D. High

Fighting a gallant but futile battle against superior foes, the Point Loma High school basketball team lost a tough game to San Diego High, 32-18, last Friday in the victors' gym. In the first game of the Southern California playoffs, the Metropolitan league champion Pointers gave the Hilltoppers, Coast league champs, a hard struggle for the decision, threatening the lead several times; but the San Diego quintet proved to be too strong. Lutes lead the fighting Lomans with six points, and Brosseau followed with five.

The game marks the probable close of Point Loma's basketball season. Despite their defeat in the playoffs, the team has made a highly successful record this year, bringing to their school its first basketball championship title, and marking up a total of seven victories and no defeats in league play. Hearty congratulations are due these boys for their fine fighting spirit and for their splendid achievement.

Flower Show at Encinitas Will Open March 14

More than three-fourths of the space at the National Midwinter Flower show, opening at Encinitas March 14 for a nine-day run, has been reserved, according to James Harvey, manager.

This insures the show being the biggest ever to open at Encinitas, as more than double the ground space has been enclosed, on the show's own grounds near the Santa Fe depot.

Workmen are busy daily on the grounds, assisting in the landscaping and the placing of exhibits. There will be 80,000 square feet in the area, and 20,000 of this will be under canvas. The remainder will be for landscaping and displays in natural surroundings.

Harvey was optimistic over this year's exhibition being the biggest ever. More enthusiasm from flower lovers, landscapers and growers has been evidenced, because of the longer showing, and the assurance of 12 per cent of the total gate as prize money. There will be musical programs every afternoon and evening.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word. Thy hands have made me and fashioned me." These words of the Psalmist are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson-Sermon presents these verses about Jesus, from Matthew: "And, behold there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him. And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out? How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days. Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other."

Among the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "Sickness, sin, and death are not the fruits of Life. They are inharmonies which Truth destroys."

Lutheran Mission

Last week the ground was broken for the Lutheran chapel at Cape May avenue and Sunset Cliffs Blvd. C. F. Von Gunden & Son of San Diego have the contract of erecting a semi-Spanish chapel, which includes, besides the auditorium and chancel a committee room and a study. This church, a realization of the hopes and prayers of the late Mrs. Victoria Kunz, should be ready for dedication by Sunday May. 3rd.

The services of the Lutheran Mission are held in the Woman's club house on Sunday morning at 10:45 with Sunday school at 9:30. Lenten services invite your attendance on Wednesday evenings at 8 p. m. at which time the meditation is focused on the Passion story of Jesus, the Christ in a series of seven solemn sermons on "Redeeming Love."

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

Rev. W. S. Dunn will occupy the pulpit in the morning hour of worship at 11 o'clock. His sermon topic will be "Taking Hold of God". There will be special music by the choir.

The evening service is at 7:30 o'clock at which time the pastor will speak on the subject "The Price of Sin".

You are cordially invited to the services of this church.

POULTRY HELPS.

By E. E. Steele.

Impacted crop or "crop bound" is an over-distended and paralyzed condition of the crop, generally caused by over-eating or by swallowing coarse and indigestible substances, such as feathers or fibrous feeds. In cholera the crop is paralyzed as a result of the disease.

The first symptom is a loss of appetite, or an effort to swallow without being able to do so. The crop is very large, with contents more or less firmly packed. If the condition continues, the breathing becomes difficult and death may result.

Give the bird one or more teaspoonsful of sweet oil and massage the lower part of the gullet, if it contains feed, also the crop until the contents are softened and can be worked toward the head, hang the bird by the feet, head down, continue to massage and work the contents of the gullet and crop out thru the mouth.

The bird should not be given anything to eat for several hours after it is reieved.

If the contents of the crop can not be removed by this treatment, the crop must be opened with a sharp knife.

The opening should not be over one inch long, use a small spoon to remove the contents of the crop, if the gullet is blocked, work the contents into the crop and remove it, wash the crop out with clean warm water.

The opening should be closed first wth four stitches in the wall of the crop then the same number in the skin, use coarse, white silk and tie each stitch separately.

For at least two days feed milk and raw egg beaten together, and gradually change to a soft mash.

MEN OF EASTERN STAR SERVE DUTCH BANQUET

Point Loma chapter No. 490 O. E. S. met in regular session Monday night, March 2, with Gladys Nelson, worthy matron and Nels Berge, worthy patron, presiding. Balloting was a feature of the evening, and a large number of members were present to cast their vote. Joe Shell, worthy patron of San Diego chapter, was present and escorted East.

Following the meeting, Bonham Brothers quartette, through the courtesy of Nels Berge, entertained very generously. Later, in the banquet room, the men of the chapter had charge and entertained the ladies in a true Dutch manner. Herr Bob Burnett, and Herr Leroy Lee were present, though hiding behind very fierce whiskers. Mr. Hicks gave a very interesting talk on Masonic conditions in Germany and the meeting finally came to a hilarious close with the men singing "Is Das Nicht Ein Schnitzel Baum."

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

An assembly program in honor of George Washington's birthday was given recently by pupils of Miss Shea's and Mrs. Moon's rooms. Teachers and children were thrilled to see and read parts of a paper printed in 1799, which told about Washington's death and funeral. John Ostrom brought this paper to school in a glass frame. It is old, yellow and brittle — a real record of the past. Maurice Watson presided. Reports were given by Jack Powers, Marie Quist, Martin Frieze and Bill Bonnifield. The H6s closed their part of the program with singing the song, "Mount Vernon Bells".

BASEBALL VICTORY

Baseball teams in room 11 are celebrating a victory having won their first game of the new term from room 14. The scores were: boys, 23-7 and girls 25-15.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

Campfire girls of Wanca Huta Group II, Ocean Beach school have finished their doughnut sale with a grand total of one-hundred and sixty-two dozen doughnuts sold. From the enthusiasm shown, it would appear that the girls have had more fun with this than with any of their previous sales.

Joan Oliver and Janet Glithero have been received into the group.

MONITORS SELECTED

Monitors were elected in the high second grade, Mrs. Confers room to serve thru the month of March. They are: Ball, Dickie Larsen and Robt. Mansfield; scissors, Robert Loba; library, Rosmary Bilk; housekeepers, Meriam Hear and Thelma Rowe; office, Muriel Mellon; chair monitor, Norma Castanien; desk, Georgia Lee Pollard and Jeanne Oberhallman; blackboard, Priscilla Welsh, Corinne Fontaine; flower, Geo. Ahlgren and Richard Wiley.

NEW CAPTAINS

New team captains were appointed Wednesday for the second five weeks of the spring semester. Boys' captains are Maurice Watson and Jack De Renne for teams one; Bobby Peck and Paul Jones for team two; Edward Litten and Jack Powers for team three; and John Howarth and Buddy Peterson for team four.

Girls' captains selected were: Carmen Price, Marion Boyd, Betty Lohman, Myrtle Hess, Lois Titlow and Louise Couvillon.

ATHLETIC BANNERS AWARDED

Mr. Robinson presented the following captains of teams athletic banners in opening exercises on Wednesday morning: Team 1 to Bob Wagner; team 2 to Eddie Thomas; team 3 to Tommy Padgitt; and to Lawrence Purdy of team 4. Girl banners went to Christine Campbell, of team1, Virginia Hall of team 2, and to Melba Noorda, team 3. Sportsmanship banners were awarded to Robert Roche and Maxine Kvach.

BANKING BANNER

A great deal of competition has been built up between rooms this present semester for the banking banner. Since the beginning of the new semester a different room has won the banner. Percentage is worked out by the number of depositors a room has each week. Many new depositors have been gained thru the keen competion. Mrs. Confer's H2s won the banner this week with 47 percent of the children banking; Miss Barnes' 3rd graders were in second place with 45 percent; Miss Shea's H6 room had 38 percent for third place; and Miss Haines' first graders were fourth with 29 percent.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Mrs. Guy E. Ponsonby and Mrs. Inez Davenport will speak on "Buddha and his Teachings" at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, Sunday, March 8th. They will relate the story of one of the noblest and greatest sages of world-history, sketch what Buddhism is, and explain wherein it resembles and wherein it diverges from the teachings of Theosophy. For Theosophists state that their philosophy is that truth which is behind religions and Theosophy itself is not limited by creed or dogma. Nevertheless of all exoteric religions Buddhism most closely approximates the highly ethical and philosophical teachings of Theosophy. Questions from the audience are invited at the close of the lectures.

LOCAL W.C.T.U. HAS CROWD FOR DINNER AND PROGRAM

The W.C.T.U. program and dinner given last week was very successful and enjoyable. We regret that we were not prepared to serve all who came, but promise to make ample provision hereafter for all.

Among the pleasing features of the program were the singing by the M. E. church choir, and very timely talk by Mrs. Turner Kline representing the local P.T.A. Mrs. Oliver Gillispe, one of the high school teachers, spoke of the problems and needs of young people of today.

Mrs. Roy Lee, president of the Woman's club, told of their plans to help clean up the beach, morally and spiritually, as well as to rid the waterfront of kelp.

Our State president, Mrs. Eva Wheeler talked about the "five year, five point" plan now being carried on.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, is the largest organization in the world, having for its objective, Temperance and the welfare of humanity! It may not be generally known that two thirds of the countries of the world have active W.C.T. Unions. We are happy to report that the proceeds from the dinner and the pledges made, encourage us greatly in helping us to meet our accepted quota in this educational program. We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the hearty cooperation we have received, and we trust we may be able, with continued cooperation, to succeed in our task.

WELL SUITED

"Please, ma'am," said a hesitant voice, as the housewife opened the door, "I've come from the labor exchange to apply for the position of housemaid."

The housewife looked puzzled.

"Are you sure you've come to the right house?" she asked the girl.

The latter confirmed the address.

"But I do all the work myself," replied the housewife.

Two Separate Powers—One to Produce, One to Advertise

The value to the world of any natural gift or talent depends on two separate powers—that of producing excellent work and that of bringing it to the notice of those who can appreciate and use it. Very few persons unite in themselves these two capabilities. It is a rare thing to find a man or a woman possessing a very marked talent in some one department, and also the tact, the judgment, the knowledge of the world needful to make the most and the best of it.

Many indeed have a limited share of each, and may to that degree be successful in their pursuits; but the highest and finest abilities in production usually so fully absorb the performer that he has neither ability nor inclination to push them into public notice. Thus it often happens that special excellence is hidden from the world, and society is deprived of its beneficial results.

I had no time to close the casement itself. As the servant pushed open my door, I took my stand behind it, with my back to the wall.

When he found the room dark, he let out a grunt of surprise. For an instant he hung on the threshold, then he turned back to the passage and closed the door.

As his steps died away, I turned the handle once more. . . .

It was half past eight now, and the hall was dim.

I could hear no sound of talking, but I knew that Rush was yet in the sitting-room.

Then Bugle, pacing the apron, strolled into and out of my view.

It occurred to me that he was waiting for Rush to finish his meal; then the two would go off together and I should be left. Meanwhile Pharaoh was in action.

Rush was moving—I heard the scrape of his chair as he thrust it back. An instant later he made his way out of the house.

I heard him say something to Bugle and I saw him turn to the right.

As neither reappeared or started the car, it looked very much as though they were sitting down on the bench to the right of the steps. If I was right, then a man at the sitting-room window would be above and behind them and able, if they were talking, to overhear every word. Fate that had used me so rudely, played into my hands.

* * * * * * *

"Yes, I know that bit," said Rush. "I've 'eard it before. But if he's such a marvel, where's Bohun gone? Bohun was boun' to be here on Monday night. 'Cos why? 'Cos Pharaoh'd wired him—'cos Pharaoh desired 'is presence. Well, that's three days ago, an' he ain't here yet."

"What's Bohun matter?" said Bugle. "'Er grace the Duchess of Sheba is what we want."

"Who said he mattered?" said Rush. "I never said he mattered. Wot I said was that Pharaoh knows 'ow to slip up. 'Oh, don't talk silly,' you says. 'Pharaoh's a genius, and geniuses don't slip up.' 'All right,' I says. 'Where's Bohun?'" In manifest dudgeon he sucked at his cigarette. "Pharaoh said he'd be here on Monday night. He near told us the soot of clothes he'd 'ave on. Well, he isn't here, is he? I don't say Bohun matters, but I'd just as soon know where he is. He may be an artist, but he knows how to use a gun."

"Now look 'ere, Rush," said Bugle, crossing his legs. "'Ow many you can mention could of done wot Pharaoh's done. Beg and beggage into that castle—the guest of the Count. Me an' you here in the rooms wot the Willies 'ad. No more one-eyed pubs; no landlords with sweaty necks; no cottagers stoppin' an' starin'; no watchin' out; but everything smooth an' ship-shape, an' nothin' to do but wait."

"Wait?" screeched Rush. "I've waited long enough on this job. You can talk as much as you like, but we ain't no nearer now than when we begun. Look at Dewdrop there, callin' him 'Sir' an' 'Capting' an' standin' behind his chair."

"It's all in the game," said Bugle. "If—"

"Yes, I could play that game," said Rush. "It'd suit me down to the socks. But who ever plays it but him? When he asks me in on this job he calls it 'a change of air.' 'Soft as silk,' was his words, 'an' I mayn't even need your 'elp. But you'd better be there,' he says, 'in case there's a door wants openin' before we're through.'"

"You was took on as I was, an' just as glad of the job. 'I want you,' says Pharaoh—that's all."

"All?" yelped Rush. "Why—"

"All," barked Bugle. "Before we met him in Paris, he never spoke of the job, an' then he spoke to us all." As the other sought to protest, he let out a terrible oath. "Why try an' put it across me, you fool. Pharaoh don't ask; he takes. That was his way—always, an' I've known him longer than you. You talk as if you was his equal; he ain't got no equal alive. We're in his employment, we are. An' if we play his game, he'll make us—look at Long John. Six hundred a year and a pub, and I know that's true."

"Who wants a pub?" snarled Rush. "An' who's Mr. Pharaoh to pick an' choose? He's the boss, of course—that's his job; but we're not his servants."

"All right, all right," said Bugle, as though he were sick and tired of the other's complaints. "Call it a game. Sign on with 'im, an' you've got to take wot's comin'—that's all I meant."

"Yes, an' wot is comin'?" said Rush. "That's wot I wants to know. I judge a man by results. Three weeks tomorrow we've been here, an' wot's your Napoleon done? I'll tell you." Bugle groaned. "In the firs' place he's been beat by a girl an' a groom. He knew they was comin', an' he knew they was carryin' gold; an' they got away. If we'd roped the road, we'd of had them; but when I made the suggestion he tells me to shut my face. An' wot else has he done—that counts? He's let us all in for murder—that's wot he's done. As long as young Artifur walks, there's a rope round each of our necks."

"He won't walk long," said Bugle.

"Says you," cried Rush. "Why we don't even know where he is. Nor the girl. Nor Bohun—that was comin' on Monday night. But we know where that groom is all right—an' so do they."

"You make me sick," said Bugle. "You know just as well as me our luck's been rank. 'Ow many English narks would you look to find in a—Austrian jungle at break o' day? An' another thing. Did you expec' that we'd pick up a quarter 'f a million by takin' a week-end trip?"

"In course I didn't," said Rush. "Wot I says is this. Up to date Pharaoh's failed. Dress it up 'ow you like, he's lost every game."

For the next 20 minutes they wrangled much as before, whilst I stood masked by a curtain that was not drawn.

At length Bugle got to his feet and crossed to the car. Then, to my great surprise, he opened a door and sat down in the driver's seat. I watched him start the engine and switch on his lights, while Rush sat still below me, winding his watch. Bugle drove the car slowly forward, as though to go down to the bridge. Then he brought her to rest and got out, leaving his engine running and both of his headlights on.

As he sat down again below me, I understood his action and saw why the car was there.

The stone bridge was bathed in brilliance. No one could possibly cross it without being seen.

I think this must show that while they may have been experts in the planning and execution of ordinary crimes, in a campaign such as this had become the rogues were clean out of their depth. I was standing three feet behind them, but I had not used the bridge; and how could they think that because the bridge was denied him, a man who proposed to approach would turn round and go back?

"Ten minutes more," Rush announced, "an' I'm goin' off. I've 'ad enough o' late nights. When I've nothin' to do, I like to do it in bed."

"I should keep your boots on," said Bugle. "He's comin' back."

There was a moment's silence. Then—

"What?" screamed Rush. "Comin' back?"

"That's wot I said," said Bugle.

"Wot for?"

With studied deliberation Bugle lighted his pipe.

"Dewdrop's back," he said.

"Where from?" said Rush. "I didn't know he was gone."

"Of course you didn't," said Bugle. "When Bohun never showed up, you'd 'ave dropped that line. But that isn't Pharaoh. That wire didn't bring Bohun 'ere, but it fetched 'im out of his digs." He paused to exhale luxuriously. "Dewdrop's back from Salzburg—with a letter young Arthur's wrote."

"Wot, not sayin' where he is?"

"An' the Duchess of Sheba," said Bugle. "Pharaoh's gone off this evenin' to rope the two of them in."

CHAPTER VII

The Race to the Swift.

The rogues were at my mercy, but I had no thought for that. I was transfixed with horror, for the nightmare which I had rejected had become an accomplished fact.

Though Bugle and Rush were still speaking, I had no idea what they said, and when I looked at my watch I could not tell the time, because my wrist was shaking and the dial seemed a great way off.

Then the disorder passed, and my brain seemed to leap into life.

The car. I must get to the car. Pharaoh had had a start of an hour and a quarter or more, but I knew the way to the cottage better than he.

At once I saw that to thread the woods in the darkness would take me five times as long as to go by the lane. But the way to the lane was barred—barred by those cursed headlights that I had found so futile ten minutes ago.

For an instant I glanced about me. Then I picked up the lamp and hurled it into the grate.

The base of the lamp was of china and heavily built; the crash of its fall was frightful, and the flames leaped up like streamers, to lick the breast of the chimney within and without.

Now I had expected that Bugle and Rush would, both of them, make for the sitting-room door. And Bugle did. But Rush stood up on the bench, to look, instead, through the window I was proposing to use.

I suppose the fellow was lazy, and laziness brings no luck. Be that as it may, I hit him between the eyes before he could think and vaulted out of the casement on the flags.

And then I was in the closed car and was storming down to the bridge.

My journey may be imagined—I drove in a mist of fear. At every bend of the road I could see the sinister shadow of some mishap, but I wrung from that car a pace that she had not been built to give.

Enough that I entered the track at five minutes past ten and that eight minutes later I was stumbling across the clearing, to find the path to the cottage by the light of my torch.

* * * * * * *

"Do what you like," said Freda. "I tell you she's gone."

"You know where she is," said Pharaoh, and lighted a cigarette.

The man was sitting half on the table, swinging a leg; Freda was at the foot of the little staircase.

"You know where she is," said Pharaoh, quietly enough.

"That I do not," said Freda, and flung up her head. "Her man was gone, and she was but waiting for me, to give over the child."

"Did she take the path to Witchcraft?"

"Nay," said the forester's wife, "she took the path that she knew."

"Think again," said Pharaoh smoothly, with his eyes upon Freda's face.

Crouching without the casement, I saw the girl wince before the ice of his tone; but though she was now very pale, she gave him back look for look. As I drew my pistol, I heard her steady reply.

"I tell you she took that path," and, as she spoke, she pointed out of the window, directly over my head. And, as she pointed, she looked in the same direction—and saw my face.

She started ever so slightly, but that was more than enough.

As I leveled my weapon, Pharaoh swung round and fired but his pistol was yet in his pocket and his bullet went wide of my ear. And then in a flash he had flung himself off the table, and all the candles were out.

So I threw away a chance in a million.

That the forester's wife should have seen me was sheer bad luck.

There was only one thing to be done, for the moonlight was all about me, and Pharaoh and Dewdrop could see me without being seen.

The Man Was Sitting Half on the Table.

I fell on my face, writhed my way into the shadows and darted across to a tree that stood some twelve paces off. And there, flat against the trunk, I took my stand, with my eyes on the door of the cottage which was full in the light.

I was ready now, at last, and the moment I saw the door move I fired at the latch. This had the effect I desired, for the door did not move again.

I was now as composed as I had been distracted, for the knowledge that my darling was safe had made me another man. My nerves were steady, my brain was clear, I felt like a giant refreshed, and I saw at once that my lady must be at Witchcraft, where she was waiting to stay me from hastening back to the cottage and so into Pharaoh's arms.

One minute later I was behind the cottage and was running as fast as I could for the Witchcraft path.

I was more than halfway to the cross roads when Sabre touched my hand. With a leaping heart, I at once took hold of his collar and ran by his side. Thirty yards on he stopped.

"Nell," I said quietly. "Nell."

There was a rustle behind me. As I turned round, her arms went about my neck.

"I heard shots," she breathed. "You're not hurt?"

"Not a scratch, my queen."

"Thank God, thank God."

She clung to me desperately. "Oh, John, I can't spare you again. Ever since you left, I've been half out of my mind. You see . . . without you I'm beggared . . . you're all I've got."

Her tears were wet on my lips as I strained her against my heart.

"Come along, my lady. We'll talk when we're out of the wood."

Less than 10 minutes later I lifted the Rolls from a thicket and on to the road.

"Freda appeared," said Helena, "at a quarter to eight. It seems that she missed her train in a final, frantic endeavor to do as we said. We told her to deliver the letter to Geoffrey or Barley alone. Ten times she took that letter to your cousin's Salzburg address; 10 times she was asked to leave it, and 10 times the poor girl refused. When she had missed her train, she determined to try once more, and this time they managed to bluff her into giving it up. Well, the moment I heard her story, I knew that the damage was done, so Sabre and I made for Witchcraft as fast as ever we could. I confess I was rather worried. You see, though you didn't know it, you and Pharaoh had now the same objective. It seemed extremely likely that you would use the same roads. And even when Pharaoh arrived—as he did, about half past nine—I couldn't be sure that he'd missed you, for he might have dealt with you and come on for me. I watched him take the path. When they'd gone I made sure of the Rolls and came back to watch—and pray. The darkness was very trying, for the path, as you know, was in shadow and I had to watch for you both. And then, far away in the forest, I heard two shots. . . ."

Jiffy Knit Sweater With Matching Hat

PATTERN No. 5512

Any four-to-eight-year-old will be warm as toast in this sweater and cap set. The sweater's a "jiffy" knit—just plain knitting combined with yoke and sleeves of easy lacy stitch, and finished almost before you know it. The cap done in a straight strip, gathered at the top, also includes these two stitches, adding a pert pompon for good measure. Choose a colorful yarn, and there'll be no "insisting" she wear it!

In pattern 5512 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown in sizes 4, 6 and 8 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

Throw Me a Cable, Captain, and I'll Give You a Tow!

A man in search of a quiet holiday set out in a small sailing boat, his only equipment consisting of provisions and a wireless set. He sailed serenely for several days, until at last he sighted one of those liners which resemble small towns rather than ships, says the London Observer. The appearance of the little boat created excitement on board the liner, which slowed down.

The captain was wondering whether it was a matter of going to the rescue when the holiday maker moved to his transmitter and tapped out the message: "Is there anything I can do for you?"

Toys Are the Realities of World in Which Child Lives

Toys are to the child what work and tools and recreation are to adults. To a large degree, appropriate toys for the various age levels depend on the individual child; the toy should be just a little more advanced than the child's present stage of development, says Billie Teel Mettel in Hygeia.

The preschool child should be given playthings of an order not so plentiful in school, that will give him contact with nature, instruct him in simple handwork and exercise the large fundamental muscles. Imitative play becomes important at this time, and the laundry set, drawing paper and wooden garden tools are welcome and appropriate toy gifts.

OF COURSE, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.
